

The school - teaching or torment?

Children are happy to go in the first class, but it will take only two or three years, and they already have to convince to go to school. Why is this happening? Why are kids so curious and eager to learn new things, loses interest in school? Because the process of schooling essay help designed so that children quickly become bored in class because he's looking at the horizon adults, not children.

Too smart students who ask a lot of questions and answer not in the book at school don't like and criticize. Teachers full of enthusiasm and wanting to change something, come up with new and exciting crush. It turns out that a simple school is not able to make the learning process entertaining and diverse.

Studies not associated with reality. The school gives children important life skills. It does not teach you to shop or to drive a car, even basic communication and achieving your goals is not taught. The school has a completely different goal: it provides an opportunity for adults to give their children the time of labor day. Kind of Luggage for kids, it is a fact, though sad.

During the study the average child has about 10 000 hours. And what is the result? Whether he is able to name the years of Dostoevsky's life or to explain the rule of thumb? And add and subtract without a calculator or write competently? One of the adults remained in the memory of what a primitive or a parabola? And to make a complex sentence consisting of several clauses, and not to use a hint, they can? Why clog the heads of children all these things? Isn't it better to teach them how to cook dinner, to behave in society, to communicate with others, to repair the outlet and to meet the opposite sex?

Impossible little razor without any movement to go back to school. For him it is torture. For the curious, childish mind trying to experience and understand the world around themselves learning from their mistakes, there is nothing worse than to obey and believe the authoritarian view of the teacher and not be able to check everything myself, to touch and to know. Children have the same clothes, to think and to respond, to set the same goals and want the same. Those who think otherwise are trying to fight for his feature roughly suppress. Very similar to the army, where yesterday's boys are shaved, all making the same face.

How to oblige children to study well, if they slip primitive classes and textbooks, served primitive knowledge? Is it possible in such conditions to speak about personal development, individual abilities of children?

The school gives such knowledge. And parents all the time, so it gets worse. Hence, there are Goths, emo, rappers, neo-Nazis, skinheads and so on. Of course the adults blame the politics, society, anyone, but not themselves. Although not just the parents fault that I forgot about the family values and often smoke and drink, giving children a bad example. They have no time to develop and especially to educate their own children. Therefore, young people are uncultured, do not want, is not interested in anything and nothing builds.

And so it will be until the society will cease to fear change. And yet another school change, just repaint the school walls from pink to blue, and the next Minister will decide that it is better to study for ten years, not twelve.

In the development of children it is possible to observe three phases, which they pass linearly:

– the stage of self-development (developing abilities of the child);

– the stage of self-knowledge (the child learns its capabilities);

– the stage of determination (the child chooses his way of life).

For a child it is important that any of these stages it was supported by the parents, relied on his choice, helped him and worked for him. Only then will he become independent and learn to take responsibility for their actions. With the baby to play and learn, to discover his talents and to shape them to develop moral and spiritual values, to inculcate a sense of beauty.

Children – our future, and only by adults depends on how this future will be.